CHILDREN HOLD BABY SHOW

Mary Coupe of Cassimere Street Chosen Most Popular Playground Baby—Indian Chief Entertains Last Evening—Benefit to Be Held Wednesday

Little Mary Coupe, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Coupe of 9 Cassimere street, who was entered by her brother, Clarence, was chosen the most popular playground baby amid shouts of applause at the baby show popularity contest held Monday evening at the Playstead before hundreds of spectators. Besides receiving the blue ribbon and prize in the group for children under two years, she also received a gold ribbon as the winner in the finals.

Starting with a parade of the entrants marshalled by Robert Bissett, Thomas Auchterlonie, Charles Sellars and Norman Ross, the forty-two entrants and the boys and girls sponsoring them passed in review before the spectators on the bleachers.

Class I, consisting of children under one year was introduced by the judge, John Alexander. Burst after burst of applause rose as the candidates were successively indicated increasing in enthusiasm and volume as the contest proceeded through Classes II, III, and IV. Fair hair and dark, brown eyes and blue, blondes and brunettes, Lord Fauntleroy collars, and frilled bonnets came in for their share of applause but the deciding factor was really the personal popularity of the entrant and the entrant's sponsor. Deafened by the shrill cheers of the youngsters, Mr. Alexander, conducted the contest with the utmost good-nature and judgment.

The children were placed in four groups. The first group included children under one year. Four babies were entered in this group. Twelve babies were entered in the second group which included babies under two years. Fourteen were entered in the third group for children under three years and eleven entries were made in the fourth group for children under four years.

The winners in the four groups were:

Babies under one year—First, John Skea, held by Rosemary Doyle; second, Olive Gaudet, held by Lillian Dwyer; third, James Stewart, held by his sister, Georgina Stewart.

Babies under two years—First, Wilhelmina Beck, entered by her sister Lucy Beck; second, Patricia Smith who was selected as the most popular playground baby last year entered by Mildred McGlynn; and third, Clare Darby entered by Marion Hilton.

Babies under three years—First, Mary Coupe entered by her brother, Clarence Coupe; second, Margaret Duke, entered by her brother, Harry Duke; and third, Barbara Monroe, entered by her sister, Lillian Monroe.

Babies under four years—First, Frances Patullo entered by Katherine McGlynn; second, Ruth Newcomb, entered by Jeannette Porier; and third, Susanne Fisk, entered by Hazel Wright.

Other entries in the various divisions were: First group—George Whiteneck, entered by Ruth Hartmann.

Second group, under two years—Jerome Rainville, entered by his sister, Lucille Rainville; Dorothy Keith, entered by her sister, Margaret Keith; Evelyn McLay, entered by her aunt, little Edith Fettes; Alex Stewart, entered by his cousin, Isabell

FINANCE COMMITTEE REPORTS

Approves Extra Appropriation for Construction of Union Street—Does Not Sanction Additional Sums for Public Works or Wayside Trimming

Warrant Articles which call for appropriation of funds are legally required to receive an expression of opinion by the Finance Committee.

The following statement is therefore issued:

At the last town meeting, the citizens in a very emphatic manner registered their disapproval of all appropriations not essential for the proper conduct of town affairs.

Article I—During the last two years, the citizens have voted large sums for extraordinary public improvements. Consequently an additional expenditure of $50,000 for emergency work appears unwarranted.

Article II—The appropriation for the resurfacing of Union street was passed in March on condition that the County and State would bear a proportionate share of the expense. To insure the completion of this previously voted project, this Article is approved.

Article III—The Finance Committee approved and the Town in March voted $1000 additional appropriation for tree work in 1930. An additional appropriation of $5000 does not appear justifiable.

It is the opinion of the Finance Committee that the granting of the appropriations asked in Articles I and III and the spending of the money in the manner called for in this Warrant will not relieve the unemployment situation which is the object sought by the sponsors of the first and last Articles.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES J. BAILEY, Chairman

ACCIDENT AT FARNHAM'S

Three Killed when Automobile Fails to Take Curve on North Andover Road which Has Bad Record

A newly married couple on their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Graves Plummer of 330 Emerson street, Melrose, were instantly killed when the automobile in which they were riding crashed against a tree at the corner of Andover and Peters streets in North Andover shortly before seven o'clock Wednesday morning. Edwin G. Nash of 8 Shepherd street, Cambridge, an instructor at Colgate college, who was riding with them, died a short time later at the Lawrence General hospital.

All three were thrown from the sedan after it caromed off a tree, side-swiped a second, and then spun around twice on the cement highway. Plummer and his bride of two weeks were hurled onto the car tracks where they died almost instantly. Nash was picked up beneath the rear bumper of the automobile. He died at the General hospital an hour after he was admitted.

The automobile was battered and crushed as if it had been an egg-shell, and all indications point to the fact that the car was traveling at a terrific rate of speed. The wrecked automobile, the brake marks on the sideway and the condition of the trees, substantiate the theory that the high-powered automobile roared along the highway at great speed and came to grief when the driver misjudged the curve.

A passing motorist moved the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Plummer from the car tracks to the side of the road and Nash was taken from beneath the wreckage and placed on the grass by the side of the road. Lawrence and Andover fire departments sent ambulances. Each took one of the men to the hospital but Mrs. Plummer's body was not touched until Medical Examiner Victor A. Reed arrived. The car was allowed to remain where it rested until Dr. Reed completed his examination of the wreck. The woman's body was moved to Lundgren's Undertaking parlors in Andover and Dr. Reed left immediately for the hospital. Nash died before he arrived and he made a complete examination of the bodies of the two men before leaving for Andover where he viewed the body of Mrs. Plummer.

For almost an hour after the accident, the identity of the victims was unknown. North Andover police officers in looking over the wreckage, found registration papers in a lady's handbag. The registration was made out to Mrs. Gula G. Plummer of Melrose. This enabled the police to check up on the identification of the young couple. Nash identified himself but was unable to give any information concerning his comparnions.

Splinters from the wrecked car were strewn along the side of the road, marking the route taken by the car after it hit the first tree. The two rear doors were torn off and other parts of the car were ripped from the car. The body was all but stripped from the chassis. The top was crushed in and torn away from the sides. The front end of the car escaped damage in the crash. The glass in the headlights was not broken and there wasn't a single scratch on the radiator or hood. From the windshield to rear, the car was completely demolished.

An examination by Dr. Reed at the General hospital revealed that Plummer suffered a skull fracture which was the immediate cause of his death. He lived a few minutes but never knew what happened. He was unconscious and suffered no pain, in the opinion of doctors. Besides the skull fracture he was bleeding from the nose, right ear and mouth, a broken lower jaw, abrasions about the face forehead and eyelids.

Nash passed away as the result of a crushed chest and severe internal injuries. It was apparent that he had been struck by the steering wheel and death came from these injuries. Many of his ribs on the left side were broken, his right shoulder was dislocated and he had bruises about the face and nose.

Registration for State Primary

The registrars of voters will be in session at the Town house on next Wednesday, August 27, from twelve o'clock noon until 10.00 p.m. for the purpose of registering new voters, who may desire to vote at the State Primary on September 16. This will be the last opportunity to register before that date, but other dates will be announced later for the state election in November.

Naturalized citizens must bring their citizenship papers with them at the time of registration.

Child Struck by Auto Near Death

Ten-year-old Marion Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bryant, 76 South Main street, is on the danger list at the Lawrence General hospital, where little hope is held for her recovery, following an automobile accident within a short distance of her home early Tuesday evening.

The girl, according to hospital reports is suffering from a fractured skull and numerous body bruises and she has not regained consciousness, having been in a coma since her admittance.

A charge of operating so as to endanger was filed against the driver of the car, Leonidas Victor of Brookston, Indiana. In District court Wednesday morning he pleaded guilty to the charge and was held in bail of $300 when the case was continued until August 27. Victor was on his way to Georgetown, where he planned visiting relatives.

Victor told police investigators of Andover that he did not see the child until she was in the path of his car which was travelling at an approximate speed of 20 miles an hour. He was able to bring the automobile to a stop without swerving when he applied the brakes and in time to prevent the wheels from passing over the child's body.

Alighting from the machine he found the little girl lying senseless in the roadway underneath the front bumper and brought her to her home. She was given emergency treatment by an Andover physician while awaiting the arrival of the Andover fire department ambulance.

The cross bar which connects the lamps on the machine was broken and pushed into the radiator and it is believed this struck the girl as she was knocked down. Upon admittance at the hospital her name was immediately placed on the danger list and her chances of recovery seemed slight.

Massachusetts Holding Its Own in Keeping Down Fatalities

For every person that was killed by automobiles in this state last year Massachusetts motorists drove safely 7,695,504 miles, the equivalent of a third the distance around the world. This picture of the actual highway performance of motor vehicles in Massachusetts is made available for the first time as the result of returns from the gasoline tax compiled and analyzed by the registry of motor vehicles and the governor's committee on street and highway safety.

Heretofore there have been local figures showing the ratio of automobile deaths to population and to the number of cars registered, but there has been very little data to indicate just how far those vehicles have been driven. In the new computations of gasoline consumption and mileage Massachusetts is seen as maintaining the same comparatively good record that was revealed in the statistics previously assembled.

The automobile death rate in Massachusetts for 1929 was 1.5 per million gallons of gasoline consumed. This compares with an estimated rate for the entire country of 2.8. The rate in Connecticut, a state noted for its activities in highway safety promotion, was 2.3, while the rate in New York was 2.1, this latter figure being partly estimated as the gasoline tax did not go into effect in that state until May of last year.

The total number of gallons of gasoline used in the operation of motor vehicles, both pleasure and commercial, in Massachusetts last year was 494,436,506. During this same calendar year there were 771 fatalities caused by automobiles in this state, giving an average of 641,292 gallons of gasoline consumed for each of the 771 deaths. After consulting representative automobile, garage and oil men a figure of 12 miles per gallon was arrived at as most nearly approximating the mileage obtained by the average automobile, taking into consideration all types of machines and their relative numbers in this state. On this basis it was computed that for each of the Massachusetts fatalities the total of 7,695,504 miles of highway had been traversed.

The death rate per million gallons of gasoline fluctuated irregularly month by month during the year. It did appear, however, that the rate tended to be higher in the mid-winter months of November, December and January. Nevertheless, both August and September showed almost equally high rates. The monthly figures were: January, 2.1; February, 1.0; March, 1.5; April, 1.4; May, 1.1; June, 1.5; July 1.1; August, 1.7; September, 1.8; October, 1.4; November, 2.0; December, 1.7.

During the first half of this year the motorists of Massachusetts used approximately ten per cent, or 21,500,000 gallons, more gasoline than in the first half of 1929. It is expected that the second half of the year, which includes the more active motoring season, will show an increase of between 10 and 15 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Up to July 1, however, Massachusetts had been holding its own in keeping fatalities down to the same mark as 1929, so that the figures are consequently likely to show a considerably higher mileage per fatality this year than last.

"Inside" Information

Do you know leaflet 28, "Lamb as You Like It", which may be obtained free from the U. S. Department of Agriculture? It contains a dozen good recipes and a talk on the principles of cooking lamb.

Mildew stains, when very fresh, may sometimes be washed out with soap and water, or bleached in the sun. The growth of mildew is at first on the surface of materials that have been allowed to become damp, but in a short time these molds penetrate the fiber and injure it, and are almost impossible to eradicate. Soaking the stains in sour milk overnight and placing in the sun without rinsing, will sometimes help. Slight stains are sometimes removed by moistening them with lemon juice and salt and placing in the sun. Javelle water, used as a bleach will take out mildew stains on white cotton or linen but should never be used on silk or wool. Chemicals are also used at times. Mildew on shoes may be wiped off as soon as detected, and the shoes washed with soap and warm water, and well dried. Stuff the shoes with soft crumpled paper or dry oats, and dry in a warm, but not hot place.

Local Motor Fleet Has Clean Record for Six Months

Driving for a period of six months in succession without a single accident of any kind is the record made by 66 per cent of the cars in the state-wide safety contest for commercial vehicles, according to announcement of the final winners by the governor's committee on street and highway safety. In the fifteen groups for different types of fleets, eleven "dark horses" forged to the front to capture final honors, while among the victors were only four concerns that had headed their groups for any one of the monthly prizes.

Boston had the biggest representation among the group winners with a total of three, while Lynn came next with two. Western Massachusetts made a strong showing with winners from Springfield, Ludlow and Pittsfield. Cape Cod was in the picture with winners in Yarmouthport and Hyannis. The other cities on the honor roll were Fall River, Woburn, Malden, Lowell, Fitchburg.

The best performance in the contest was turned in by the taxicab group and individually by the Pittsfield Yellow Cab Co. This concern operated its fleet of fourteen cars for a total of 55,923 hours—the largest of all contestants without a single accident during the entire six-month period. The taxicab group as a whole had an accident frequency rate of only 3.42 per 100,000 hours of operation.

The accident frequency rate of all the competing fleets was 23.59. This was almost identical with that for the final month of the contest and well below that of 32.35 in the opening month. No comparison is available with other states because this was the first state-wide contest of its kind in the country, but the frequency rate in a similar contest held in New York City was 67.70.

A total of 453 fleets, comprising 13,357 commercial vehicles, competed throughout the six months of the contest. These cars experienced only 4,438 accidents during 18,812,944 hours of operation. Of these accidents only 472 involved personal injury, a ratio of one in eight.

The number of individual cars which operated for the entire contest without an accident was 8919, or 66 per cent. The number of fleets which as units operated with a spotless record was 98 or 21.6 per cent of the entrants.

In contrast to the low frequency rate of 3.42 experienced by taxicabs was the high rate of 40.35 for busses. The next worst group was the heavy trucking division with a frequency rate of 36.80. The municipal group with a figure of 11.42 ranked next best to the taxicabs. The rates for the other groups were as follows: Bakeries, 24.13; buildings supplies and contractors, 16.70; cleansers and dyers, 34.07; coal and ice, 17.89; dairy products and ice cream, 21.43; laundries, 20.34; wholesale merchandise, 26.39; retail merchandise, 30.09; oil and gasoline, 18.47; public utilities, 18.65; transfer, cartage and storage, 28.64.

Ranking next to the Pittsfield Yellow Cab company for individual honors was the Lowell Gas Light company, which operated the largest fleet for the second largest number of hours. This fleet of 30 cars operated for a total of 35,184 hours without a single accident for the entire six-month period. The communities which produced final winners but had never before appeared on the list of monthly winners were Woburn, Yarmouthport, Ludlow, Hyannis and Lowell.

Trophies are to be awarded shortly to the winner in each group. Although only one was picked in each group there were many other fleets which went through the entire period without an accident, the latter to be awarded specially engraved certificates of commendation. The awards were made on the basis of the fleet that operated the greatest number of hours with the most perfect record, so that among those with clean slates, greater number of hours of operation decided the victor. Stickers were awarded to the group leaders each month. A second six-month contest is already in progress.

In addition to the group winners there were 84 fleets in 53 communities which went through the entire six-month period without an accident. Fitchburg took first honors in this respect with six firms having clean slates. Included in the list is the fleet owned by Robert Dobbie of Andover.

HOOD'S Grade A Milk

is selected from the largest herd of Tuberculin Tested Cows in New England

NEVER, in the history of New England dairying has such an extensive group of tuberculin tested, milk producing cows been selected for a milk service . . . As good and safe and rich as Hood's Grade A Milk has always been, we have gone a step further in adding this extra refinement to make Hood's Grade A Milk the ideal babies milk . . . Not many years ago, the intimate supervision, the extreme care given to Hood's Grade A Milk today was unknown to dairying. Later, these protective measures were applied only to milk of the highest price, production costs making it unavailable for many. Now Hood's Grade A Milk is surrounded by every protective safeguard. Cows are tested under State and Federal supervision. It is produced under a control that exacts a standard higher than any legal requirement. Hood's is the ideal babies milk, yes, and for grownups too.

RICH MILK—Better than legal requirements for Grade A Milk. Rich all through.

CLEAN MILK—From clean cows, produced under rigid sanitary supervision.

TESTED COWS—From cows tuberculin tested under State and Federal supervision, and then especially selected by our own inspectors.

CLEAN BOTTLES—Bottles are scientifically cleansed and sterilized

SEALED BOTTLES—Double sealed to prevent tampering or contamination.

PASTEURIZED—With the most modern and scientifically correct methods and equipment.

McEnelly's Famous Victor Band at Roseland Tonight

Edward J. McEnelly and his sensational Victor recording orchestra of New York and Springfield, probably the greatest dance band in the country, will be the featured attraction extraordinary at Roseland-on-the-Merrimack this evening. For many years Ed McEnelly and his great orchestra have been entertainers-de-luxe by means of radio broadcasts over stations WEAF of New York and WBZ of Springfield, to say nothing of hundreds of famous Victor Red Seal records. The McEnelly musicians have also won widespread fame on the concert stage and in the theatrical world. They are coming direct to Roseland tonight from the famous Butterfly ballroom in Springfield, their headquarters. Expert critics are unanimous in hailing them as the outstanding dance orchestra in the United States. They are sure to attract a record-breaking throng of dance enthusiasts to Roseland this evening.

Popular demand of a unanimous character brings about the third engagement extraordinary of Jean Goldkette's famous Casa Loma orchestra of Detroit next Friday evening, August 29. No orchestra in the long history of Roseland has won so many sincere friends and admirers. The general opinion at the close of their second Roseland engagement a few weeks ago was to the effect that "the Casa Loma band plays the sweetest and most rhythmically perfect dance music in the country". And to climax a great month's series of musical programs, Roland Russell's Ramblers, the Merrimack Valley's most popular and busiest orchestra, will occupy the orchestral stage for the regular check dancing parties on Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

THE ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

Looking Back Twenty-five Years

Work is rapidly progressing on the new house of Fred Smith's which is being erected for him by Hardy & Cole near Wilson's corner.

Edward T. Ward of North Andover has purchased through Rogers' real estate agency the house numbered 42 Washington avenue, owned by Henry Symonds.

Miss Sarah Wright of Lynn has purchased the Pearson farm on the Salem road.

Ammon P. Richardson and Michael Stack have gone to Ayer Junction with loads of tools for L. N. Farnum who is building an electric road there.

Members of the Salvation Army of Lawrence have pitched a tent on the Locke estate at the corner of Elm street and Walnut avenue and intend to hold meetings two nights a week, Sunday and Thursday for the remainder of the summer and early fall. Last Sunday the first service was held and although it was not advertized quite a few attended. Last evening another meeting was held which was seriously interfered with by a gang of hoodlums from the village. Their language was most vile and profane and the Salvation officers had some difficulty in proceeding.

Miss Violet Newman is visiting relatives in Salem, N. H.

Miss Cecelia Kydd of Cuba street is visiting friends in Worcester.

Mr. and Mrs. Xury T. Wood are spending a vacation of two weeks at the Weirs, N. H.

John B. Morrissey of Valpey's market is enjoying this week as his annual vacation.

Mrs. Blythe Tough and Miss Elsie Wood are enjoying two weeks at Hampton Beach.

Mrs. Maria Stork and daughter, Miss Amy, are spending a few days at Castine, Maine.

Miss Grace Morse left town yesterday for Hampton Beach where she will spend a two-weeks' vacation.

Mrs. E. W. Pitman and daughter, Ernestine, are spending a few days with friends in Clifton.

Miss Sarah B. White has been spending a few days this week with Mrs. Frank E. Gleason at Salem Willows.

Miss Mildred Jaquith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Jaquith celebrated her seventh birthday by entertinaing fifteen of her young friends last Saturday afternoon at her home on Whittier street.

John Batchelder organist and choirmaster at Christ church is spending the week in camp with the choir boys of Newtonville.

Mr. and Mrs. David M. Robb and son, Milton, of Buffalo, N. Y., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Lawson of Maple avenue.

Miss Elizabeth Affleck of Currier, Campion & company's store is enjoying her annual vacation. Mrs. Helen Hale of Lawrence is filling her position.

Miss Ada A. Buchan of Lincoln street is visiting at the home of her brother, Donald A. Buchan of Ashland, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Abbott and son, Jewett, and daughter, Elizabeth, are visiting at Marblehead.

The new census of Andover lists 6,630 souls. The gain is less than two per cent notwithstanding the fact that in the past ten years all of the mills, and business enterprises have shown a good gain. Of course this does not include Ballardvale and it is possible that the loss there is accurately set forth as enough to offset the gain in other parts of the town. The population in 1895 was 6,145; in 1905, it was 6,630. The gain in ten years was 485 or 7.89 per cent. The males number 3,130; the females 3,500.

The assessors have completed their work on the valuation of the town and have set the tax-rate at $16 per thousand.

The fishing trip conducted by Thomas Bentley last Saturday was without doubt one of the most enjoyable and profitable ever conducted by the well-known fisherman. The prizes for the fish caught were as follows: Largest fish, William Allen, $2.75; largest number of fish, Joseph I. Pitman, $2.00; smallest fish, Ralph Upton and Cutter Foster, fifty cents each. Other members of the party were: Frank K. Dodge, George Muise, Max F. Lucke, Fred Rogers, Leonard Saunders, James Mc Knight, John Coates, W. S. Bentley, C. H. Williams, A. P. Richardson, David O'Connell, Malcolm McTernen, Ralph Upton, Harry Abbott, Edward Manning, James Coates and Thomas Bentley.

In Andover, August 12, 1905, a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newman.

Misses Gladys and Helen Higgins are spending the week with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Morrison in Merrimac.

Closing Entertainment at Middleton Health Camp

You are cordially invited to attend the closing entertainment and exhibition of the children's work which will be given at the Middleton Health camp on Sunday afternoon August 24th, at 4.30 p.m. Come and bring your friends with you!

Did you ever follow up your investment in Christmas seals? It pays dividends in the summer months at the Middleton Health camp in the beautiful pine grove in back of the Essex Sanitorium. Perhaps you belong to the group that sighs a bit when the extra demand for a dollar or two comes upon you in the midst of the Christmas rush, but if you visit the Children's Camp and see the little thin arms and legs of the 72 undernourished boys and girls filled out and bronzed by rest, wholesome food, fresh air, and sunshine there, you will indeed feel proud to think that your little purchase each year is going into building up boys and girls so that they can resist the inroads of tuberculosis. This camp is entirely carried on by the money you and your neighbors give the Essex County Health Association for seals and donations.

Children come to camp who are far below normal weight—many of them are children who have a mother, father, brother, or sister ill with tuberculosis. No active cases of tuberculosis can be accepted at the camp, but many who come would become active cases, no doubt, if care was not given to arrest the tendency. The children have been recommended by school nurses and doctors as needing the treatment given at the camp. It is amazing how these children are built up in eight weeks time, and best of all, they and their parents are shown the path to health. This year the gains in weight have been excellent. Every child in camp has gained at least a pound and several have gained ten and twelve pounds. The average gain for the season will be about six pounds.

The old-time physician reached into his little black bag and handed out a pill for all ailments. Today doctors are finding that in many cases sunshine, rest, and wholesome food will do much toward restoring health. The formula used at the Middleton Health camp to build up and strengthen little bodies is simple nourishing foods, regular rest periods, exercise, and exposure to direct sunlight rays. Cannot children get all of these things at home?—you ask. Perhaps the child comes from a large family where he has slept in the same room with other children or adults. The actual feeding of such families, too, may be an acute burden if the income, as is often the case, is small. Hardest of all is the rest period and enforcing that need upon squirming, wiggling children. In camp it is all a part of the day's routine and after a short time the children become accustomed to the schedule. If you were to visit the camp on any afternoon between the hours of 1.30—2.30, you would find it almost impossible to believe that there were 72 children there for you would not hear a sound.

Many undernourished children never find their way to camp. There are prosperous homes where children are allowed to indulge in whims, and the homes where mother is reducing and forgets that the diet of growing children requires more calories than she needs. It is so much easier to prepare and serve the simple foods needed by growing children, that one wonders why so many children are given heavy foods that are not easily digested. Fresh vegetables, fruits, cereals, bread and butter, meats such as beef, lamb, and chicken, fish, eggs, cheese, and nuts, and simple desserts such as fruits, custards, milk puddings, ice cream, plain cake and cookies are the foods given at camp. A list of these foods and a typical menu is given each family when the child leaves camp, and they are earnestly urged to follow the lists.

The camp has all of the comforts which will be found in the expensive summer camps for children of wealthy families. Four well screened open-air bungalows each provide sleeping quarters for 18 children and two counselors. An infirmary building provides ample facilities for caring for sick children or isolating suspicious cases of contagious disease. Two bathhouses, one for boys and one for girls, with shower baths, toilets, and wash bowls make the camp sanitary and up-to-date. A large, well screened dining room with a beautiful fireplace of field stone adds to the pleasure of meal times and also provides a place for recreation on rainy days. Since 1927, contributions have been made by county commissioners according to legislation passed at that time permitting such contributions for preventoria approved by the state department. This has been added to the funds received from Christmas seals and private contributions to meet the annual cost of over $5,000 to run the camp. All the facilities of the Essex Sanatorium medical staff lay almost at the door of the camp and their X-ray machines, dental clinics, and other equipment are used by the camp.

The executive board and officers of the Essex County Health Association contain many names well known along the North Shore. The president is Dr. Olin S. Pettingill; vice president, Dr. Walter G. Phippen; treasurer, Mr. J. Edwin Austin; counsel, Mr. James E. Farley; field secretary, Miss Cora L. Cooke; and health educational secretary, Miss Rae E. Kaufer. The board of directors consists of Mr. James J. Walker, Mrs. Stella G. Wells (Amesbury), Mrs. Joseph H. Higginson, Miss Margaret Curran, Miss Anna W. Kuhn, Dr. W. D. Walker (Andover), Mr. Earl E. Gay, Mrs. Charles H. Metcalf, Mrs. Lloyd Nichols, Miss Helen Wales, Mr. Frank A. Wood, Miss Margaret Weir, Dr. Ralph E. Stone (Beverly), Miss Elizabeth A. Ahern, Mrs. John Kimball, Mrs. George W. A World War veteran tells how General MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, carried a pack when, unrecognized, he was ordered to do so. A similar incident relates to a Civil War commander of high renown, who offered no argument when collared by a policeman and yanked back within the fire lines, beyond which he strolled while lost in thought. Small men would have acted differently.

Andover Partially Completes Tree Preservation Program

Preliminary cavity treatment of the valuable shade trees in the town of Andover has recently been completed by a group of dendricians from the Salem office of the F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert company under the general supervision of Tree Warden, Ralph Berry.

Early this past spring, the Tree Warden decided that the beautiful trees which line the streets of the town should be examined with a view to correcting the disease conditions which were rapidly developing in open cavities in the trunks and branches. With J. P. Cassidy, Salem manager of the Bartlett company, he visited the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories in Stamford, Conn., operating under the direction of Dr. E. P. Felt, former entomologist for the state of New York. In Stamford Mr. Berry witnessed the experiments being conducted in a 200 acre experimental forest of many varieties of trees. Cavities were filled with different materials such as concrete to be tested with Nuwud, the cavity material used exclusively by the Bartlett organization. Nuwud is a light, durable, and flexible material made up of wood flour, asbestos, magnesium compounds and other inert substances. It has the same relative coefficient of expansion as wood, does not crack, and adheres to the walls of the cavity thus preventing the entrance of moisture and air which form decay. Nuwud is waterproof and antiseptic and is applied in one solid mass.

The origin of this material is rather unique. For many years a substance has been used as a flooring for the decks of battleships where tenacity and flexibility under strain were cardinal requisites. After years of experimentation the Bartlett organization adapted this material to its present use as a filling for cavities in trees. Tests have proven that new growth is aided considerably by the healing properties of Nuwud when it is used with the "Heal Collar" a device for protecting the delicate cambium layer or "growing region."

Only such trees were treated this year as were found to be in a healthy condition warranting cavity work. Many other trees were treated in order to restore them to a healthy state that would enable cavity work to be done in the future.

Mr. Berry will be glad to explain the principles of modern cavity treatment as it is typified by the recent work on the trees on Elm, School, Central, Chestnut, Essex streets, Maple avenue, and Punchard avenue, to any citizen who is interested.

Open Bids for Post Office Site

Bids for a post office site in Andover sent in answer to the advertisement printed recently in the Townsman were opened on Wednesday, six in number.

It is probable that a representative from the Treasury Department and one from the Post Office department will visit these sites personally in the near future. According to Postmaster John C. Angus the inspector may not be confined to these six sites nor does he expect any immediate decision in the matter.

Whether or not the move to secure an additional appropriation of $50,000 for road work is defeated, as it should be, at the coming special town meeting depends upon the interest shown by the voters of Andover in the matter.

There are a number of citizens who are in favor of the project and it is certain that they will make it a point to attend the meeting and vote for the appropriation. There are many more voters who are opposed to it and would vote against it if they were there. The question is how many of the latter group will attend the meeting?

The special town meeting having been called, it is the duty of all voters who can possibly do so to attend the meeting and vote according to what they consider to be for the best interests of the town—for the appropriation if they are convinced that it would be wise and proper, and against it if they regard it as an unwise and improper move.

Civic duty requires interest enough in town affairs on the part of the voters to bring them out when there is a question for them to decide. Town appropriations should be made by a vote of the town as a whole and not by a few voters.

Indifference is one of the greatest faults in our political system and is responsible for many blunders that result from poorly attended primaries, elections and town meetings. Andover citizens now have another chance to do their civic duty next Monday night by attending the special town meeting in sufficient numbers to make the decision arrived at one that reflects the views of a majority of the voters.

There is much more than the appropriation of $50,000 for relief work involved in the present movement. An issue is raised that affects the policy of the town,—that of the wisdom of making additional large appropriations after the regular town meeting has acted.

The Townsman feels that it would not be showing good judgment to add further to the tax burden of the citizens by appropriating an additional $50,000 for road construction now. A larger sum than usual was provided for the purpose at the regular annual meeting in March, when the subject was thoroughly discussed with a good representation of citizens present, and that is as far as the town should go. The unemployment situation was known then and it was the judgment of a much larger number of voters than usually attends a special meeting that the sum provided was all that the town could well afford to devote to that purpose this year. The action taken should have settled the issue and it would have if someone had not sought to make political capital out of the situation. In reality there is less sympathy for the unemployed in the movement than there is desire for advancement of political ambition.

With the By-Pass work providing employment for many and the reconstruction of South Union street, which is to start soon, adding to the opportunity for employment of more men, there is no justification in increasing the tax rate nearly $3 per thousand in order to provide $50,000 for other road construction, when only a fraction of the sum can be used for actual relief work, the greater part going for material and skilled labor.

Common sense in conducting town affairs is just as essential as in the conduct of private business; and if ordinary common sense is used next Monday night the appropriation of $50,000 will be refused.

Money Management

In starting a system of teaching the management of money in the public schools of Brookline the school authorities there have taken a step that has almost unlimited possibilities for good.

To know how to use wisely the money one earns is just as important as to acquire the education that makes possible the earning of the money. The Brookline experiment will be watched with interest.

Too many people know too little about the proper handling of money; how to spend, how to save, how to buy thriftily, and how to avoid waste. If such knowledge can be taught successfully in the public schools it should be added to the curriculum throughout the country.

The Lowell Courier-Citizen says of the Brookline idea:

"The town of Brookline in this state has started a system of teaching the management of money to its school children. At first blush it sounds a bit like one more fad added to the curriculum, but on second thought it has the elements of a perfectly logical topic for school study and practice. The children, if thrift and savings and care in expenditure are inculcated in their earliest years, ought to be better citizens and be more competent to manage public expenditures thriftily in future years. We have to admit that the thrifty handling of public money and expenditures is none too prevalent these days. Incidentally one's own private means ought to be better managed than is uniformly or generally the case with people and families today. In the lean years we have too little to depend upon that we have saved out of the fatness of prosperity, but on the contrary, we are accustomed to buying what we want when we want it and whether we really need it or not.

"Teaching money management in the schools includes the establishment of the habit of saving but also as is proper, invites the habit of budgeting which we suspect few enough of us follow in our own affairs. Even cities do not budget with judgment. Get the budget habit and understand what it is for. School children, having learned how to handle money, ought to get along better and while it is not exactly a bit of book-learning it seems to be a wholly practical subject for school instruction. Handling money rightly includes many things. Not the least of these is a better chance to detect a fraudulent plot to get one's money away. A better understanding of what constitutes value and of what savors of fraud can be acquired by the pupils.

"Brookline has embarked upon a decidedly interesting and valuable educational idea which will undoubtedly spread through schools in general in due time. It ought not to add anything to schooling costs but would, in time, save it actual cost which cannot be said of some of the educational fads which bless or bother our school systems now."

If the time now devoted to fad education which has proved so expensive should be devoted to money-management teaching there would be a double gain,—knowledge of great practical value at much less cost. Here is something worthwhile for the Andover school committee to think about.

There can be no question about the advisability of providing the additional money necessary to reconstruct South Union street to a width of 30 feet instead of 20 as first proposed. What is worth doing at all is worth doing well. The town certainly can make no mistake in following the advice of state engineers who, after a survey, have stated that the street should be thirty feet wide. They are in a position to know what is best and their recommendation should be carried out, especially since the state will stand its share of the increased cost.

The pageant by summer playground children, entitled "In Witchcraft days", so successfully presented recently, fitted in well with the Tercentenary observances of the year. The illustration of the spirit of cruelty and intolerance giving way to the American ideas of freedom, justice and goodwill provided inspiration to both participants and spectators.

The proposal to cut the brush from the sides of the roads in many outlying districts of the town is a good one and should be carried out. Improvement in appearance and increased safety to motorists would result. Why this work could not be done out of the regular appropriation of the department involved is not clear. It is a matter of routine in connection with its activities and it would seem that it could have been provided for without a call for $5,000. However, it is a move that has much to commend it and would in all probability provide more actual unemployment relief work than would the $50,000 for roads, for almost every dollar of it could be paid in wages to men out of work who haven't the physical strength to do hard manual labor, but who could easily stand the light labor of clearing away brush.

Rev. Charles W. Henry's vivid pen picture of his activities as a "Casual Dean" in the great Southwest, contributed to last week's Townsman, was a most entertaining account of his travels and observations. Such letters are most welcome, helping as they do to brighten the columns of the Townsman by providing information of interest to its readers.

The sudden death of George C. Dunnells removes a well known Andover figure who, through his business career here and his long connection with the police and fire departments, won a wide circle of friends. He died while on duty, having been employed for the summer as special traffic officer at Brewster.

The Andover summer playground appears to have had a notably successful season under the efficient direction of Miss Margaret Davis. When in the vicinity of 1,000 children attend a baby show and lend their lungs vociferously in applauding the tiny winners it is evident that enthusiasm and interest has been aroused that cannot fail to be of lasting benefit to the children.

Sponsors for the winning babies each received a jar of candy.

The contest was held under the direction of Miss Margaret Davis, superintendent of the playground and her assistant, James Bissett.

Chief Shingabis impersonated by Buell Fuller of Wollaston, a counselor at Camp Manning entertained the playground children and their friends at the Playstead last evening. The drama of Indian dance and legend which has been successfully given at Camp Andover was brought to the playground children through the efforts of Mrs. Charles Ward.

Clad in suits of skin and gorgeous head dresses Chief Shingabis demonstrated the sign language, kindled a campfire by rubbing together two dry sticks and igniting cedar tinder and had his young braves go through various Indian dances including the squat knee, waddle, five step, and toe and heel. He also told the story of why the turtle has a hard shell. A group of children were invited to join in the snake dance and the evening was brought to a close with an invocation of the Great Spirit.

Andover Travelers in Cairo During Riots

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon S. Brown, who have been traveling in the Near East, were in Cairo during the riots there. Mr. Brown writes that the fighting by the revolutionary party was at its height during their second day's stay in the city and that 28 were killed, 245 wounded and 1876 taken prisoners.

They made the acquaintance of Brig. Gen. Pasha Parker of the Egyptian army and they were entertained at lunch and dinner by him. He also provided a cordon of troops and police around the hotel in which they were staying and also an escort for sight seeing around the city and to the Sphinx. Through the courtesy of Brig. Gen. Parker they lost but one day's sight-seeing on account of riots.

Later in Jerusalem they met Dr. Harvey R. Gaul, English composer and writer of "The Holy City", whose wife is a sister of Mrs. Richard Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Brown were entertained by Dr. MacCowan of Jerusalem, a personal friend of Mr. Brown. They visited St. James church and the American church and Mr. Brown played the organ in the latter edifice. Other places of interest visited were Good Samaritan Inn, Rebecca's tomb, House of Caiaphas, Last Judgment Hall, Last Supper room, the stations of the Cross, Jericho, Tiberias, Galilee, Bethlehem and the Church of the Nativity.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown's itinerary includes, Damascus, Beirut and the ruins at Baalbeck, Alexandretta, Smyrna, Istabul, the Piraeus and Naples.

Mr. Brown, who is organist and choirmaster at Christ church expects to play in Hereford Cathedral, England where he was organist and choirmaster before coming to Andover. They will return from England, sailing from Liverpool September 6 on the S.S. Laconia of the Cunard Line.

Weddings

ADAMS—WILLIAMS
ELLIS—WILLIAMS

At one of the prettiest wedding ceremonies held in Andover this season Miss Helen Calder Williams became the bride of George James Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Adams of Lupin road and her sister, Mary became the bride of Edward C. Ellis, of Enmore street, Shawsheen. The brides' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of 4 Stirling street. The ceremony took place Saturday evening at six o'clock in the Free Christian church with Rev. Frederick A. Wilson, pastor emeritus, officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bridal party stood before a screen of fir boughs intermingled with gladioli and maidenhair ferns. The brides both wore charming gowns of white and veils caught with coronets of orange blossoms.

Mrs. Jean Northum was matron of honor for Miss Helen Williams and Miss Ann Leslie was maid of honor for Miss Mary Williams. They were gowned in blue and pink with hats to match. Each groom acted as best man for the other.

The ushers were James Williams, Foster Nealy, Richard Zecchini and Alfred Souter.

After a two-weeks' trip to the White Mountains Mr. and Mrs. Adams will make their home on Maple avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis will reside with the bride's parents on Stirling street.

To Dedicate Loyalty Cabin at Camp Andover

Four Andover girls, Margaret Waldie, Evelyn Cairnie, Thelma Beck and Dorothy Gordon are enjoying the last two weeks at Camp Andover in company with nearly seventy girls from greater Boston, fifty of whom have been at the camp before. These Andover girls won the privilege of two weeks of camp life as a reward for their helfpulness at the Guild during the winter season.

Last Friday night members of the third camp enjoyed their farewell dinner followed by stunts, the distribution of awards and the friendship circle around the campfire. An excellent and abundant chicken dinner, with fresh vegetables and ice cream was served in the mess hall which was elaborately decorated by the girls with ferns and flowers. Special guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ward, Mrs. C. Carleton Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hartigan, Miss Briggs of the Pilgrim Congregational church, Dorchester, Miss Bessie P. Goldsmith, and Captain Howard G. Copeland and Buell Fuller of Camp Manning. The supper hour was enlivened by camp songs and cheers and dessert was prolonged by stunts contributed by girls, counselors, and guests at the insistent demand of the girls' "We challenge—". An item of special interest on the program was the Chinese song by Vung Yung Ting, who is spending the month at Camp Andover. Arriving in this country only a few weeks ago her first impressions of this country are gained from the life at this summer camp into which she has entered with whole hearted enthusiasm, taking part in all its activities. Not only does she know all the songs and cheers, but she has also learned to swim and was among those to receive a Camp Andover pin. At the opening of the fall term Vung Yung Ting expects to enter Bryn Mawr after which she will attend medical school before returning to her own country.

The report of the camp nurse showed that the aggregate weight gained during the two weeks was 145 1-4 pounds. The greatest individual gain was 7 3-4 pounds, and five girls gained seven pounds.

"Aunt" Dorothy Bourne gave a talk on "Loyalty" after which she awarded four beginner's buttons, eighteen swimmer's buttons, and three junior life-saving emblems. Twenty-nine first-year Camp Andover pins were awarded; eight second-year letters; ten third-year banners; eight fourth-year banners; one fifth year banner; two sixth-year banners; and one eighth-year banner. Two girls, Betty Heller of Dorchester and Ruth Chittick of Hyde Park received the coveted Loyalty medal which is awarded only to the girls who have fulfilled all requirements and best exemplified the Camp Andover spirit. Seven nature emblems were given to the girls who have done the best nature work. The announcement that the season's score between the Reds and the Blues stood 408 to 405 was received with enthusiastic applause.

When the lights had been extinguished the impressive candlelight service was held, each camper and guest lighting a candle from the Loyalty taper held by the head counselor and proceeding to form the friendship circle around the campfire, closing the evening's exercises with a prayer and the singing of "Abide with Me."

An invitation to attend a celebration of Camp Andover's tenth anniversary which will take place on Sunday, August 24, has been extended by the Boston City Missionary society to former campers, counselors and friends.

The decication of the new Loyalty cabin the gift of Camp Andover girls will be a noteworthy feature of the program. With two rooms and a piazza, it is situated on the shore of the pond and provides a reading room and accommodations for the handicraft work.

The Pilgrim Way Service endeared by association to Camp Andover girls will be held at eleven o'clock followed at half past twelve by an out-of-door dinner. The dedication will take place at half past two after which there will be an opportunity for a swim before the picnic supper at six. The day's program will close with the usual campfire and sing. A charge of fifty cents will be made for the dinner and for the supper for which reservations will be made in advance. It is expected that many former campers and counselors will return to the hilltop for this occasion.

Sells Coal Business

The Andover Coal company owned by H. H. Remick has been sold to John Tredennick, wholesale coal dealer of 185 Devonshire street, Boston.

Mr. Remick came to Andover twenty-one years ago from Somersworth, N. H., where he had been engaged in the coal business for many years. Mr. Remick's residence is at 37 Maple avenue.

Children Give Successful Entertainment

The young people of Maple avenue and vicinity entertained their friends at a very successful show given on the grounds of the Dobbie home, 28 Maple avenue on Wednesday afternoon.

The participants were effectively costumed and responded to the coaching of Betty Croy and Margaret Nicoll, who also furnished ukulele music.

The ushers were Harold Jackson, Warren Richardson and Henry Dobbie.

The admissions ranged in price from two to five cents according to the age of the spectators. A sale of candy and tonic helped to swell the proceeds. Everyone went home with the feeling that the show was well worth the price of admission.

The program:

Communication

Andover Townsman

Voters of Andover, I ask you to give careful consideration to the petition for $50,000 to be used to give work to Andover citizens who are unemployed. The fact that you or I may be sitting pretty is no excuse to turn it down.

It will increase the tax-rate no doubt but when you consider it from your own financial standpoint weight it in the scales of Justice. Take into consideration that in the homes of these unemployed there are little children, our future citizens, who are depending on the heads of the family to provide them with their daily bread. I do not require to tell you that there are today in Andover little ones undernourished. Any person who advocates the voting down of such a worthy cause lacks that Christian spirit that we all pride ourselves in having. Go to the special meeting and let your conscience be your guide.

Thanks be to God Andover still enjoys the purest form of Democratic Government. A small coterie of voters will not add to the tax burden of the town, and the voters as a whole will decide the issue.

I thank you

WILLIAM A. G. KIDD

To Give Musicale and Play for Benefit of Playground

An entertainment for the benefit of the Andover Playground will be given on the night of September third, Wednesday, in Punchard hall.

Together with other short subjects, there will be a program of music given by Miss Bernice May Barnes, mezzo soprano and Miss Susan Bacon Ripley, violinist, and "Just a Little Bitter or Sharp Practices Modernized", a comedy in one act, played by the Sock and Buskin club of Andover.

How the Town's Money Is Spent for Relief Work

The following facts, compiled by Town Treasurer Thaxter Eaton and Accouting Officer Mary Collins, will be of interest in connection with the coming town meeting.

Of the $9,500 appropriated last March for Outside Relief, $5,731.89 has been expended to date, as compared with $5,243.55 for the same period last year, leaving $3,768.11 available for the balance of the year as compared with $4,233.18 spent in the latter part of 1929. This year's expenditures are classified as follows: Groceries and Provisions, $1,276.64; Coal and Wood, $106.00; Board and care, $86.40; State Institutions, $1,151.09; Cash Allowances, $2,221.75; Welfare Worker, $86.64; Miscellaneous, $147.80; Relief Paid by the other Cities and Towns, $655.57.

Of the expenditures for Highway Construction this year, twenty-seven per cent has been for labor; for Water Extensions, forty-six per cent; for the Union Street Sewer, sixty-four per cent; for Tree Planting and Trimming, sixty-one per cent.

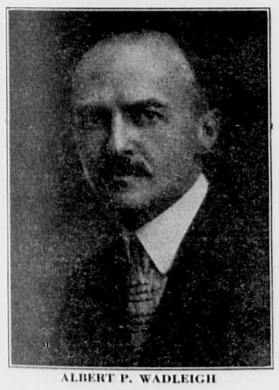

Policemen Come and Go During Vacation Season

During the absence of Sergeant James Napier of the police department this week and next week while he is on his annual vacation, Relief Officer Leonard Saunders is acting night sergeant. Reserve Officer William R. Shaw is taking Officer Saunders' place as relief man. During the past two weeks he served for Traffic Officer George A. Dane, who is now back on duty after enjoying his annual two-weeks' vacation.

Traffic Officer Thomas Dailey is also back on duty in Shawsheen village after enjoying two weeks' vacation. Reserve Officer Charles K. Gray served in his absence. This week and next week Reserve Officer John Campbell is serving for Traffic Officer Arthur Jowett in Shawsheen village while the latter is on his two-weeks' vacation.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

To the Voters of Andover and North Andover

ALBERT P. WADLEIGH

I am a candidate for the Republican nomination of State Senator in the Fourth Essex District.

I was State Senator in 1921-22-23-24 before Andover and North Andover were included in the district.

Measures introduced by me, now law; supported by your Selectmen, have saved Andover and North Andover thousands of dollars despite the opposition of Senator Davis, then a Representative.

In the last two years Senator Davis has repeatedly voted as the official record shows to set up restrictions by law depriving the people of their supposed constitutional rights.

I have always believed in and advocated the preservation of the Bill of Rights in the Constitution of Massachusetts as the greatest of safeguards in keeping for our people the right of free assembly, free press, free speech, right of petition, equality of justice in obtaining a jury trial and the right of the people to instruct their legislative representatives, and shall continue to do so. Senator Davis has voted to restrict all these great principles as the 1929 and 1930 official journal shows.

Before the Primaries of September 16 next, you are respectfully asked to examine the record of public service of both candidates.

Very truly yours,
ALBERT P. WADLEIGH
67 Church St., Merrimac, Mass.

Boy Scouts Participate in Closing Campfire

The closing campfire of the season was held last Friday evening at Camp Onway, the Boy Scout camp of the North Essex council at Raymond, N. H. Following the awarding of merit badges and camp awards, impressive exercises were held. Each camper placed a stick on the fire and after they had burned the ashes were placed in a metal box, together with messages from each patrol which will be presented to the campers of next year.

Alfred Teichmier of Troop 2, Lawrence, was presented with his Eagle Scout badge, he having qualified for twenty-one merit badges. Edwin Hadley was presented with a Life Scout badge.

The campfire program was opened by the lighting of the three candles emblematical of the three parts of the scout oath. This was followed by the touching of the twelve stones in the fireplace, which represent the twelve scout laws. Each of the leaders then made a few remarks about the fine time they had at camp during the past season.

The CO emblems, the honor emblem of the camp, were awarded to Franciscus Calkowski, Donald Adams, Dr. Nathaniel Stowers, A. Baldwin, Abbott Batchelder, Allan Chadwick, Frank Chadwick, Edwin Hadley, Frank Kefferstein, George Keith, Alton Porter, Leo Shiebler and Albert Sims.

Troop 1 maintained the best average for both daily and table honors with the average of 161.5 points and the large red and blue flag was awarded to the troop leader, Eagle Scout Joel B. Hill. Troop 2 was not far behind with an average of 158 points.

Honor tent pennants were awarded to Star Scout Jack Healy of the Lion patrol and to Star Scout Robert Nicoll, leader of the Fox patrol.

The pennant award for the highest table honors was presented to Eagle Scout Edward Brouder, patrol leader of the Tiger patrol. The aquatic banner for the patrol which the supremacy of Lake Onway was awarded to Robert Nicoll, leader of the Fox patrol.

Troop 1 had the highest troop honors for the season and the honor banner was presented to Life Scout Palmer Kitchen, assistant troop leader.

Merit badges were presented to the following scouts: handicraft, Elwood N. Chase, Walter Perry, Rene A. Richard, Robert T. Nicoll; swimming, Frank H. Chadwick, Frank Kefferstein, Joseph H. Binns, Alton Porter, John R. Sullivan; life saving, Douglas B. Stott, Leo Shiebler, Alvin Kimball; camping, Robert T. Nicoll, Douglas B. Stott, Elwood N. Chase, Edwin Hadley, Abbott Batchelder, Walter Perry; wood carving, Abbott Batchelder; chemistry, David Parker; conservation, Edward W. Brouder; first aid to animals, Abbott Batchelder; canoeing, Elwood N. Chase, Robert T. Nicoll, John J. Healy, Charles Richardson, David R. Petrie, Franciscus Calkowski, Edward Brouder, Joel B. Hill; reptile study, Elwood N. Chase, Rene A. Richards, John J. Healy, David Petrie, Douglas B. Stott, Robert T. Nicoll, Abbott Batchelder; carpentry, Robert T. Nicoll, William Daly, Walter Perry; signalling, Charles Richardson; leathercraft, John J. Healy, Abbott Batchelder, Douglas B. Stott, Edwin Hadley, John R. Lundgren, Herbert Chadwick, Andrew Pendleton, Arthur Poole; athletics, Alfred Teichmeir, Edwin Hadley, John J. Healy, Douglas B. Stott; first aid, Andrew Pendleton, Walter Perry, Warren Tennant, Allan Chadwick, Leo Shiebler.

Second class pins were awarded to William Carey of Troop 5, Lawrence, and Homer Staples of Haverhill.

Saturday morning, fifty-six scouts returned in large busses, after spending two or more enjoyable weeks at the camp. A group of the leaders remained at the camp to put things in order for next season. The camp was the first that has been conducted by the Lawrence council on its own property and from all reports has been most successful. The camp was filled to capacity for the four weeks that it was conducted and every scout who attended left the camp with the intention of returning next year.

Playground Children to Visit Home of Historical Society

Miss Caroline M. Underhill has extended an invitation asking a group of playground children each day to visit the home of the Andover Historical society and see the many interesting relics.

She is survived besides her husband by a sister, Ruth K. O'Connell of Andover; a brother, William H. O'Connell of Boston and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Augustine's church at nine o'clock. The mass was sung by Rev. Charles A. Branton, O. S. A., assisted by Rev. John Fitzmaurice, O. S. A., as deacon and Rev. Fr. Frank Ronan as sub deacon. Miss Belle Bowman rendered "Pie Jesu" at the offertory and as the body was borne from the church Miss Annie G. Donovan, organist, played Chopin's funeral march. Burial was in St. Augustine's cemetery where committal services were conducted by Fathers Branton and Fitzmaurice.

The bearers were: Augustus Nolan, Charles Bowman, John Phelan, George Smith, Edward O'Connell and Dr. T. J. Cullinane.

IVAR JOHNSON

The funeral of Ivar Johnson, a World War veteran and a well known resident of Greater Lawrence who was found dead in a garage at 51 Pleasant street, North Andover, Tuesday morning from accidental monoxide poisoning, was held Thursday with full military honors. The body was taken to the South church, Andover, Thursday morning at 10.30 o'clock and services were conducted there at two o'clock by Rev. Frederick A. Wilson, D.D., pastor emeritus of the Free church.

Burial was in the lot of Andover Post, 8, American Legion in Spring Grove cemetery. A volley was fired as the body was lowered to the grave and taps were sounded by Peter Degnan. The military services were in charge of Lawrence post, 15, American Legion.

The deceased was born in Sweden and is survived by his mother, Mrs. Carolina Johnson; three sisters, Ellen, Anna and Viola; two brothers, Karl and John, all of Sweden; also a brother, Gustaf Johnson and a sister, Bertha, wife of Eric Peterson of North Andover.

GEORGE C. DUNNELLS

George C. Dunnells of this town died suddenly at Brewster Saturday morning while he was acting in the capacity of traffic officer on a road under construction. Although he left for work in the morning in his usual state of health, evidently feeling the approach of an ill turn, he climbed into his own car where he was found dead.

Mr. Dunnells was born in Newfield, Maine, July 15, 1870. On August 1, 1892, he married Sarah E. Winslow of Brewster. Shortly afterward they came to Andover where Mr. Dunnells was employed as a clerk by Smith & Manning. For many years he worked for the late T. J. Farmer and afterwards went into business for himself. He has served as a call fireman and for fifteen years was a special police officer. He was a past noble grand and charter member of Andover Lodge, 230, I. O. O. F., and also a charter member of the Andover Police Relief association.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunnells were spending the summer in Brewster where they had been called by the illness and death of Mrs. Dunnells' father, expecting to return to Andover in the fall.

Besides his wife he is survived by: four sons, Clifford W., and Winslow, both of Andover, Howard of Brewster, and George, Jr., of Brunswick, Maine; and one daughter, Mrs. Ruth Locke of Everett.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the home of his son, Clifford Dunnells, 103 Abbot street by Rev. William E. Lombard, former pastor of the Baptist church and now of West Springfield. Committal services were conducted by Andover Lodge, 230, I. O. O. F., at the family lot in West Parish cemetery.

The bearers were: Officers Leonard Saunders, John Deyermond, James Walker, Franklin S. Valentine, Philip Cox and E. Burke Thornton, all members of the Andover Police department.

The funeral was escorted to the cemetery by Motorcycle Officers David Gillespie and Carl Stevens.

A Tribute

GEORGE CLIFFORD DUNNELLS

The news of the sudden death of George C. Dunnells while on traffic duty at Brewster, came as a great shock to his host of friends. Mr. Dunnells was born in Newfield, Maine, July 15th, 1870. He married Miss Sadie E. Winslow of Brewster on August 1st, 1892 and came to Andover the same year and has had his home here ever since. Here six children were born, all of whom are living except the elder daughter, Edith. The funeral services were held at the home of the oldest son, Clifford, on Abbot street, Tuesday, August 19th.

A most unusual expression of love and regard was shown in the very many tokens of sympathy and messages of exteem which were sent.

Mr. Dunnells' first interest was his family. He loved them devotedly and gave himself unreservedly for them. He had the satisfaction of seeing them grow up to mature years in a harmony and love that is beautiful and rare. One is compelled to ask why one who lived so simply and quietly should have made so deep an impression on so many lives.

Without ever holding public office Mr. Dunnells was a truly public-spirited man. It was a part of his life to be interested in other people. For many years his business carried him into the homes of the community. His most marked trait was readiness to help in unobtrusive ways. In his position as watchman for the Wood Mill he literally "Lived in a house by the side of the road and was a friend to man". Uncounted acts of kindness and words of cheer made life pleasanter for those who passed by his gate.

As a call fireman he did his duty with a faithfulness that was almost a religious rite. When he served as a police officer it was in the spirit of friend and protector of the people rather than an officer of the law.

Mr. Dunnells joined the Andover Baptist church in mature life and was always an earnest and faithful Christian. His faith was simple and deep and like his whole life quiet. He never sought office for himself but he always was first to help and bear the burdens. He seemed to have as the heart of his religious life the kind of soul that made him go about doing good.

Mrs. Plummer's major injury was a fractured skull. From appearances it seemed as if she was hurled headlong through the air and landed on her head between the street car rails. Her body was a mass of bruises and it is believed she suffered internal injuries. It is believed she was killed instantly.

Friends in Melrose were notified of the accident. They said that the young couple had been married about two wekes ago, shortly after Mr. Plummer's return from San Domingo, West Indies, where he has been stationed for several years as superintendent of a sugarcane plantation. He was a member of the Class of 1926 at Dartmouth, but did not graduate. After leaving college, he engaged immediately in plantation work. Mr. and Mrs. Plummer had recently returned from their honeymoon at Lake Sunapee, N. H., and had visited at the summer home of Mr. Plummer's mother, Mrs. Gula G. Plummer in New London, N. H. Melrose friends stated that the couple, accompanied by Mr. Nash, left their home in Melrose after supper Tuesday night, without making their destination known. The news of the tatal accident was the first heard by friends since they were last seen Tuesday night. Friends were unable to furnish information concerning the proposed destination of the Plummer car and could not account for its being in North Andover so early Wednesday morning. It is probable that the Plummers and their companion were bound for Mrs. Plummer's summer home.

The Plummers are socially prominent in Melrose. George D. Graves, vice president of the Chase National Bank in New York City is Plummer's uncle.

Investigating authorities said after the accident that only a guess could be made as to who was driving the car. The injuries sustained by Nash indicate that he was at the wheel when the car shot off the road. Nash was unconscious when admitted to the hospital at 7.10 o'clock, forty minutes after the accident was reported to have happened. He remained in a coma until a few minutes before his death at 8.35 o'clock. In a feeble voice he told hospital attendants his name and address and informed them that he was a teacher at Harvard. Doctors and nurses attempted to obtain information about his family but all he could tell was that he was single and had no relatives. He stopped talking and died.

It has been since learned that Nash who was an English instructor had served on the faculties of Harvard, Dartmouth and Smith college. He was born in Norwood, Mich., on March 27, 1891 and was graduated from Williams college in 1915. Only recently he had returned to Dartmouth college for a visit. He had planned to join the Colgate faculty as an instructor in English this fall. He had become a close friend of Plummer while the latter was studying at Dartmouth.

North Andover police officers were summoned to the scene of the wreck and after the men had been sent to the hospital in ambulances the officers measured the brake marks on the road. They found that the distance from the beginning of the tire marks to the first tree, was 116 feet, and from that point to where the car stopped farther up the road, was 46 feet.

In reconstructing the accident, investigating authorities believe that the automobile, moving at a high rate of speed, was bound north from Wilson's corner, on Andover street. Near the junction of Peters and Andover streets known as Farnham's corner, the sedan turned only slightly on the deep curve instead of taking a sharp right turn.

There was no evidence of skidding and judging from the tire marks, it was apparent that the driver made a desperate attempt to bring the automobile to a stop. Due to apparent high speed, it was impossible to check the rapidly moving car before it came in contact with the first tree on the westerly side of the road. The first tree was only slightly grazed and officials believe that it was the left rear wheel that hit this tree. The car, now believed to be out of control, careened off and struck the second tree 18 feet away, the left rear part of the car stripping the bark from the base of the tree. The car then spun around and somersaulted, landing back on its four wheels and coming to rest on the west side of the highway.

The point where the accident occurred is the exact location where the new proposed highway, from Stevens corner to Wilson's corner will enter Andover street. This improvement will eliminate this deadly curve.

Six deaths in three accidents over a period of seven months, involving cars that failed to make curves in the Andover and North Andover roads, make an average of one death in every thirty-five days during this period. The accidents were as follows:

January 21—At Farnham's corner, 3.00 p.m., Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth H. Tabor of Amesbury, fatally injured when their car skidded on icy roadway and crashed into a tree.

July 16—At junction of Osgood and Andover streets, 11.45 p.m., Dennis Moulaison, fatally injured when his car struck a telegraph pole.

August 20—At Farnham's corner, 6.30 a.m., Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Plummer of Melrose and Edwin G. Nash of Cambridge, fatally injured when car hits trees.

Alfred A. Bligh of 150 Lowell street, Somerville, the most intimate friend of Edwin G. Nash, one of the three who were fatally injured in an auto accident at Farnham's Corner, North Andover, quoted Whitney Wells, professor of English at Harvard university, who said recently that Nash "possessed as great a mind in his own chosen field on fine arts as anyone in the world."

Nash was born March 27, 1891, in Norwood, Michigan, where his family had settled in the vicinity of 1850. In 1911 he entered Williams College from which he was graduated in 1915 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Shortly after his graduation he enlisted in the French Ambulance Corps and saw twenty-nine months of active service in France. During that time he went through every type of gruelling experience. Several times his ambulance was shot from under him as he drove over the muddy roads with loads of wounded men and, at all times, he conducted himself so valorously that he was awarded the Croix de Guerre and numerous other minor decorations.

When the United States entered the war, he transferred to the ambulance corps of the American army and established in that branch of the service as heroic a record as he had under the flag of France.

At the signing of the Armistice, he taught at Dartmouth college for some six or seven years and in 1925 he was given an instructorship in English at Harvard university where he remained until 1926. Then he was awarded the Carnegie traveling scholarship and he spent the next two years abroad, absorbing the culture of all the old cities of Europe. Upon his return from Europe, he taught Italian Arts at Smith college until he was appointed head of the Fine Arts department of Colgate college which department he established this past year. Had it not been for the untimely fatality he would have returned to Colgate next week, there to resume his duties.

According to his friend, Mr. Bligh, he was shy and retiring despite his attainments in the field of knowledge. During his scholastic career he had been awarded in succession the degrees of Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, and Doctor of Philosophy. The fact that he had been studying at Harvard for his Ph.D. resulted in the erroneous statement that he was an instructor of English at that university. The thesis that he was required to write for his Ph.D. was in the last stages of completion and would have gone to press in a short time. Its title was "The Laborer in Modern Sculpture" and its every page was suffused with the man's remarkable erudition. At one time he had been a private tutor to the McCormick family of Chicago and, it is said, that he spoke six or seven languages as fluently as he did his native tongue. His truly brilliant mind was beginning to earn him universal recognition when the tragedy extinguished its light and fire.

Descendants of Sampson Sammons Sail for Europe

Katharine and Morison Brigham Roth who sailed with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence V. Roth on the SS. Lafayette August 21, 1930, are the direct descendants of Sampson Sammons who entertained General Lafayette on his progress through the Mohawk Valley after the war of the American Revolution. Sampson Sammons was a neighbor and friend of Sir William Johnson when the conflict for independence arose. Sammons and his three sons served actively in the cause of the Colonies during the bitter conflict in the Mohawk Valley. His famous neighbor, Sir William Johnson chose to remain loyal to England, and deserting his home, died either of a broken heart or by his own hand. His family were obliged to flee for safety to Canada. The Sammons home was burned to the ground during the hostilities. After the war Sampson Sammons leased the Johnson home for three years for a sum of 300 pounds. Here he entertained the most honored friend of American liberty, General Lafayette. Katharine and Morison Brigham Roth are the great-great-great-great grandchildren of Sampson Sammons through their mother Elizabeth Brigham Roth, daughter of Flora Winegar Brigham. Lawrence V. Roth, father of Katharine and Morison is an Instructor in History at Phillips academy on leave of absence for a year of research and travel in Europe.

Gladiolus Exhibition and Flower Show

Medals, challenge cups and money prizes and other awards are offered for gladiolus of distinctive merit. Newest varieties, best varieties, English, Scotch and Australian varieties and true specie will be on exhibit. The new seedlings classes will be of special interest to all; novice and amateur classes; big displays and basket arrangements.

Exhibitors and visitors from many parts of New England and other states will be present.

Urge Medals for Rescuers of Hall

For saving the life of Arthur J. Hall of Andover after he had fallen from a motor boat into the Annisquam river, July 21, Motorcycle Officers John Coyle and George O'Maley of Gloucester have been recommended for a Carnegie medal by persons interested in their heroic act.

Fully burdened by their uniforms, leather puttees and shoes, both officers dove into the canal, through which a tide was running swiftly, and aided by Carter Hart of Methuen, managed after a hard struggle, during which they were carried under the surface and up river by the tide, to get Hall ashore, where they worked on him until he had been revived enough to go to a hospital for treatment.

As a recognition of their act a special meeting of the Municipal Council was held a few days ago and both officers were granted an extra two-weeks' vacation with pay.

To Start League in September

The Clan Johnston bowling league will open its season early in September. Preliminary plans for the season were announced at the meeting of the Clan held last Friday night in the Fraternal hall. All members interested in joining the league must give their names to the bowling commission before the next meeting of the Clan which will be held Friday, September 5.

The members of the bowling commission are Alexander Meek, president; David B. Robb, treasurer, and James Caldwell, secretary. Plans are already underway for two matches to be rolled with Clan Wallace of Beverly. The first match will be rolled in Andover next month.

K. of C. Notes

The recently appointed Knights of Columbus bowling commission met Thursday evening at the K. of C. home to arrange plans for the coming season. The members of the bowling commission are: James Flannery, John Cussen, Frank Connolly, Grand Knight William A. Harnedy, Frank S. McDonald and Augustine P. Sullivan.

Monday night has been set as the date for the annual married men-single men's baseball game postponed from last Friday night on account of rain. The game will be played at six o'clock. In case of rain it will be played on Tuesday night.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1930, Western Newspaper Union.)

The world which clouds thy soul with doubt
Is but a carpet inside out.
It's when we view these shreds and ends
We know not what the whole intends:
So when on earth things look but odd,
They're working out some scheme of God
What now seem random strokes, will there
In order and design appear.
Then shall we praise what here we spurned:
For then the carpet will be turned.

SUMMERY DISHES

As the fresh mushrooms come into the market or one picks them in the fields, there are many ways of using them as a garnish and flavor for different dishes.

Spinach Mold.—Cook spinach until tender in just the water that clings to the leaves. A very few minutes will cook spinach if cooked in a large utensil with plenty of heat under the surface. Overcooking any vegetable destroys not only its flavor and vitamin content, but also takes out the color which is so attractive in any dish. Drain and chop fine, season well with butter, salt and a few dashes of pepper. Pack tightly into a ring mold and keep hot over water. Unmold and fill the center with:

Creamed Mushrooms.—Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add four tablespoonfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt; when well blended add two cupfuls of rich milk and cook until smooth. Add three hard cooked eggs cut into slices and two cupfuls of fresh mushrooms that have been sliced and sauted in butter for five minutes. Serve very hot. No one has yet refused spinach served in this charming way.

Aspic Jelly Salad.—Soak one tablespoonful of gelatin in cold water using one-fourth of a cupful. Heat one pint of chicken stock or canned chicken broth, add the softened gelatin and stir until it is well dissolved. Pour into a ring mold which has been rinsed in cold water. When cool place in the refrigerator to become firm. When ready to serve unmold on crisp lettuce and fill the center with cabbage or any salad mixture. Garnish with strips of pimiento.

Call Is Extended to Pastor

Rev. Herman Van Lunen who preached last Sunday at the Congregational church, North Chelmsford, has been extended a call to become the pastor of the church as the result of the unanimous vote taken at a special meeting of church members. Rev. Mr. Van Lunen has been pastor of the local Union Congregational church for the past three years.

The board of trustees of the church in charge of the work of recommending the selection of a pastor, following a conference with Mr. Van Lunen, settled details. The action was afterward taken up by the members who endorsed the choice of the trustees. George Rigby, who with eleven other members of the church comprised the board of trustees presided at the meeting in his capacity as chairman.

The North Chelmsford church has been without a pastor since the resignation of Rev. Clement F. Hahn who was called to the pastorate of a church at Saco, Maine. Rev. Mr. Van Lunen is expected to take up his duties at the church on the first Sunday of next month.

Alarm Rung for Motorboat Fire

Monday afternoon the Andover and local fire departments were summoned by an alarm from Box 24 to what was thought to be a bad fire in the motor boat owned by William Bonner, which was in the Shawsheen river near the bridge on Andover street. Evidently the gasolene in the tank of the engine ignited; the blaze caused much confusion and the alarm was sounded. The fire was soon extinguished with little damage to the boat.

Independents Win Game

The Independents defeated the team managed by Ben Nason Monday night in two straight games by the score of 21 to 10 and 21 to 19. The last game was interesting and not until the last minute of play was either side sure of winning.

The line-ups:

Nason's team—E. W. Brown, Harry Trow, Tom Lynch, Charles Partridge, Joseph Nicoll, and Alex Ness.

Indepdenents—Sol Walker, Jean Murnane, George Lawrence, Charles Nason, Charles Murnane and Henry Ryan.

Playground Attracts Many

The local playground is an asset to this community, being ideally situated near the center of the town on Andover street. At the north end of the grounds a volley ball court has been made and each evening games between picked teams are played. On the west golf enthusiasts have made a miniature golf course and other attractions give much enjoyment to the young ladies and young men. In the northwest end see-saws, a sand box and swings give the children amusement during the day and early in the evening. Other games such as quoits and touch football and baseball are played each evening and many persons are attracted to the grounds to witness the contests.

Young Men's Club Wins

Tuesday evening in a game featured by heavy hitting the Ballardvale Young Men's club defeated Troutman's South Lawrence delegation by the score of 22 to 8. Bill Bonner, former Punchard and Sanborn player got two triples, Sol Walker four doubles and Bill Benson a home run. Collins and Trenon for South Lawrence played good baseball.

The line-up for the home team was: Lynch, c., Albert Coates 2b., William Bonner, s.s., Sol Walker, 3b., Charles Partridge, l.f., James O'Donnell, 1b., Bill Benson, c.f., Thomas Lynch, r.f., Harry Trow, p.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Ballardvale	2	0	5	6	6	3	0	—22
South Lawrence	1	0	0	5	0	0	2	— 8

THEATRES

METROPOLITAN THEATRE

With Claudette Colbert and Frederic March, supported by a splendid cast, "Manslaughter", Alice Duer Miller's best seller, comes to the Metropolitan theater beginning next Thursday, August 21. "Manslaughter" is the most gripping and thrilling melodrama of recent years and now in the talking pictures it has been brought up to the minute and made a really stupendous, stirring human drama. Claudette Colbert is well remembered for her splendid work in "Young Man of Manhattan", "The Lady Lies" and "The Big Pond" but never has she had a role with such a tremendous appeal as in "Manslaughter." The play is richly produced, filled with speed and the vivid verve of the new day children of wealth. A thrilling, shocking automobile accident, exciting aqua plane racing, a dramatic court trial, a revolt in a woman's prison, these are some of the dramatic scenes of the truly great picture.

On the stage will be seen another great Publix revue, "Harem Hokum" with Morris and Campbell, Beatrice Gardell, the Three Gobs, Harry Moore and the Fred Evans Sheba girls.

At the dual console of the giant Wurlitzer, Arthur Martel and Esther Newcombe present "A Musical Tonic."

Dancing nightly, except Sunday, continues in the spacious and cool Grand Lounge of the Metropolitan.

Beginning August 28 the feature attraction at the Metropolitan will be "Let's Go Native" with Jack Oakie, Kay Francis, Jeanette MacDonald, Skeets Gallagher, James Hall, William Austen and Eugene Pallette, an all star Paramount cast.

How many points are being missed when your car is "greased"?

The chart shows one of the most popular cars, which has 61 lubricating points and requires 6 different lubricants.

ONE single point missed may mean a serious breakdown and a bill for repairs. Socony Service men cannot miss. They work from a chart of your car prepared by Socony engineers in cooperation with the car manufacturer. For 16 weeks they have been trained in Socony Schools to master the art of scientific lubrication—the Certified way.

They protect your steering wheel and upholstery with specially prepared covers. Each separate lubricant goes to the exact spot where it is needed—not on the steering wheel and upholstery.

Drive into a Socony station today and watch the man lubricate your car from its own chart. It's a pleasure to see how quickly a really scientific job is done. And remember—Socony Certified Lubrication costs no more than the old-fashioned hit-or-miss greasing.

THIS IS THE SIGN
on Socony Service Stations authorized to offer Socony Certified Lubrication Service.

INSURE YOURSELF
fuel comfort by using Socony Gasolines—they will give you much more in every way than any other kind. More motorists in New York and New England use Socony than use any other brand.

BABSON SAYS MORE AND BETTER ADVERTISING IS BEST STIMULANT TO BUSINESS PROFITS

It Is Strong Right Arm Sales Department Capable of Wresting Profits from Seemingly Barren Fields—Well Placed Advertising Is Most Reliable Tool Any Selling Force Can Have—National Advertising Better Maintained than Local

Babson Park, Massachusetts, August 22, 1930. It is a mistake to reduce advertising expenditures merely because sales are slow and profits lower. There is no better stimulant for sales and profits than more and better advertising. Admittedly, business must cut out all unnecessary expenses at this time; but it is shortsighted policy indeed to consider advertising as an unnecessary expense. Instead, look at it as the strong right arm of the sales department, capable when rightly used, of wresting profits from seemingly barren fields. Look at it as a vitalizing force in American business, as a key factor in mass distribution and mass production, as a potential stabilizer of employment, a creator of new industries, a foundation builder for future business growth.

Ask any business man today what he considers the most important department of his business, and nine times out of ten he will answer "the sales department". And yet business men who would not think of letting their factories run with broken machinery, are often guilty of giving broken tools to their sales forces and expecting them to produce business. A half-hearted or severely curtailed advertising program is a broken tool. Now, more than ever, the sales department needs every possible support. Liberal, truthful, and well placed advertising is the most reliable tool any selling force can have. In these days of slow sales, extreme competition, and narrower profit margins, the burden on the selling forces is greatly increased. The management relies on the sales department to lead the company out of the wilderness. Management expects sales volume to be maintained at least at a level which will justify continued operation of the factories. It is not fair to put this great burden on the selling force without backing it up with strong advertising support.

National Advertising Better Maintained Than Local

It is gratifying to note that the amount of money spent in June for national magazine advertising was ten per cent greater than for June, 1929. The weeklies showed an increase of 20 per cent, flat magazines an increase of ten per cent, and women's magazines an increase of four per cent. For the first six months of this year the amount of national magazine advertising exceeded the first six months of last year by eight per cent. It seems that the national advertisers have maintained their budgets at a higher level than have the local business concerns. Total newspaper advertising lineage including both national and local for the first half of 1930 were 663,086,318 lines in thirty leading cities of the country. This compares with 729,750,024 lines in the first half of 1929, a decline of around nine per cent.

The larger industrial corporations which advertise on a national scale have come to recognize more fully than have the local business men, the advantages of sustained advertising in times of dull business. Particularly the local retailers should realize that their greatest selling aid under present conditions is more and better advertising. Especially now that wholesale commodity prices have declined so extensively, retailers are in a position to offer merchandise at attractive price concessions. The retailer is now passing along to the public the savings which he is making on his purchases at wholesale. In order to increase volume of sales he should tell the public about the savings which can now be made in the purchase of staple commodities. The best way to tell them is through the local newspaper.

Good Advertising Plus Good Goods Equals Success

Whether the times are good or bad, merchandising success depends upon two principal factors. These factors are: first, good advertising in sufficient quantity, and second, a good product. Much advertising is so poorly conceived, constructed and placed that it is practically wasted. Such advertising harms rather than helps a good product. Similarly, great sums of money in good advertising can be wasted if the product is not good. When you have a combination of plentiful advertising, carefully planned and constructed, plus a good sound product which the public wants, then success will come as a matter of course. The fact that sales resistance is greater at some times than others in the business cycle should act merely as a spur to greater effort.

No matter how good a product is, it must be sold. Perhaps one hundred years ago when people were offered only a few commodities, an exceptionally good product could sell itself. Without the aid of advertising today, however, when the consumer has thousands of things offered him for purchase, many of which are equally good, it stands to reason that the article which is not advertised will not be bought.

Advertisers Should Cultivate New Fields

Those whose business it is to increase the sales of advertising will do well to look into new fields which have hitherto been uncultivated. For instance, the farmers are at a disadvantage as compared with business men, because their products have not been advertised to anything like the extent that they should. Some progress toward cooperative advertising of various fruits has been made, but very little publicity has been given to the merits of vegetables and other farm products. Truck gardeners, market men, and even the growers of staple grains, could do much toward increasing the consumption of their product by judicious and aggressive advertising campaigns. The "Tom Thumb Golf" courses which have recently taken the country by storm, open up another avenue for the alert advertising solicitor.

Advertising has played a major role in the establishment of new industries, such as electric refrigeration, oil burners, new lacquers and paints, radios, automobiles, and numerous others. Other industries now unadvertised and comparatively obscure, are awaiting the magic touch of advertising to blossom forth as great new sources of wealth and employment.

Business by the Babsonchart now registers 16 per cent below normal compared with seven per cent above normal at this time a year ago.

Fair Beauties

For centuries the ideal of feminine loveliness was the blond. The angels in the Christian calendar, as well as the goddesses of Roman and Greek mythology, were all depicted as blue-eyed and light-haired. So a beautiful woman was known as a "fair" woman. We find repeatedly in old books such expressions as "dark and ugly," "fair-haired and beautiful," and "plain in spite of her light complexion," showing quite clearly that once upon a time it was rather difficult for a brunette to be rated as of first-class beauty.

Times have changed. To be beautiful women no longer need be fair.

Extreme Degrees of Cold

Air can be liquefied by cooling to a temperature of 140 degrees below zero centigrade or 222 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, and by compressing it to about 39 atmospheres pressure. Absolute zero, which is theoretically the lowest possible temperature that can be reached, is equivalent to 273.1 degrees below zero centrigrade or 459.6 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, the lowest temperature attained is—272.3 degrees C.

Holland's Two Capitals

Amsterdam is the legal capital of The Netherlands; The Hague is the actual capital. In other words, the Dutch constitution recognizes Amsterdam as the only legal capital, while The Hague is the seat of government and the regular residence of the sovereign. The constitution provides that the sovereign must spend at least eight days each year in Amsterdam, and all royal baptisms, marriages and coronations must take place in that city.

First Canadian Post Office

A historic tablet, in Halifax, commemorates the following: "In 1755 a line of packets was placed on the route between Falmouth and New York. This was part of a general scheme for closer and more regular communication between the colonies and the mother country. These packets called at Halifax. In that year and in Montreal was established the first post office in the Dominion of Canada as now constituted."

Relief From Windstorms

Swinging windows, hinged skylights or roof panels in buildings located in storm-swept areas will prevent much of the damage resulting from tornadoes. By placing the automatic air vents in from 10 to 15 per cent of the walls and roof the explosive effect caused by the sudden lowering of the air pressure outside of the structure will be robbed of much of its destructive force.

Glacier's "Diary"

The general belief that a glacier moves slowly and smoothly down a mountainside has been shattered. Investigations covering 17 years have shown that ice fields move forward with spasmodic jerks as stress accumulates. This was shown by a "diary" in the form of lines scratched by two needles on a clock-driven disk.

Ultra Modern Grandmother

A mother told her children to refrain from using slang while their grandmother from a distant city was visiting in the home. In the course of the first dinner hour all were trying to be sedate. The college student of the family told a joke and grandmother said: "Well, Jo, that's a 'wise-crack.'"

Poor Humanity

What a chimera, then, is man! What a novelty, what a subject of contradiction, what a prodigy! A judge of all things, feeble worm of the earth, depository of the truth, cloaca of uncertainty and error, the glory and the shame of the universe!—Blaise Pascal (1623-1662).—"Thoughts."

Rubber Goods Not Molded

Contrary to what seems to be the quite common impression, rubber goods are not cast by pouring the melted material into molds. Instead the crude rubber is worked between steam-heated rolls and at the same time the sulphur and other ingredients are mixed in. The warm, plastic mixture is then molded and heated to vulcanize the rubber—that is, to cause the sulphur to combine with it.

Farm Life Fifty Years Ago

A pleasant picture of American rural life as reported in the Farm and Journal of November, 1879: "The tobacco has all been gathered in and the farmers are busy cutting corn and seeding. Their wives are making pumpkin pies. The big boys are after the girls. The little boys are after the muskrats."

Education's Aim

The ultimate aim of education is the building of character, without which there can be no real success, and there is no school for the development of character like the one in which we graduate by means of self-improvement and the overcoming of difficulties.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Gerrymandering, or the change of the boundaries of a political unit—such as a city ward, legislative or congressional district—in order to increase the power of a political party, originated in Massachusetts in 1812, during the governorship of Elbridge T. Gerry.

Eaton Wins Championship Fifth Consecutive Year

James H. Eaton won the Andover Country club golf championship for 1930 by defeating Edward M. Rickard, Jr., 12 and 11 in Sunday's playoff scheduled for 36 holes. The match ended at the 25th hole.

Eaton's win is the fifth he has scored since the course was opened.

He had a 77 for his morning 18 and took a 28 for the seven he played in the afternoon, giving him 105 strokes for the 25 holes. Rickard had an 89 in the morning and 35 in the afternoon.

Eaton is also a finalist at the Merrimack Valley and will play Dr. Joseph W. Fenton, Sunday, September 7, for the title.

Eaton won his first round match by defeating N. B. Brown, 5 and 4. He won over E. R. Boyd in the second, 2 and 2, and beat E. G. Best in the semi-final, 5 and 3.

In the morning round Eaton played the outgoing nine in a 38, two over par. He was three over coming in, taking a 77 on the par 18 holes. He was tied with his first seven holes in the afternoon seven when the match ended 28 strokes each.

On the 25 holes Eaton won 15, Rickard won three, sixth, 15th in the morning, and first in the afternoon. Seven holes were halved.

Eaton had four birdies and Rickard two, Eaton had 11 pars and Rickard five, while Eaton was over par ten times and Rickard eighteen.

Eaton's triumph was the fifth he has registered at the Andover C. C. He has won every club title since the course was first opened.

Biery Second Flight Winner

Francis Biery, 28, defeated John A. Arnold, 20, for the second flight title of the Andover Country club divisional club championship in match play on Sunday. Biery won 1 up on the 19th hole having been conceded six strokes by his opponent.

Biery entered the final round by first disposing R. E. Hardy, 1 up, also 19 holes and then encountered H. R. Rafton also winning 1 up. His next opponent was Horace Wadsworth whom he defeated also 1 up. He therefore won all his matches 1 up, with the first and final ones being 19 holes.

Arnold who was in the top bracket of this flight won his first round by default from O. B. Benson. Then he defeated W. N. Lewis, 2 and 1.

In the third round or semi-finals he advanced into the title by scoring a 2 and 1 victory over W. L. Hawkes.

All was even at the end of the first 18 holes of Sunday's match. Going into the 19th or regular first hole Biery scored a five to his opponent's six and thereby took the match.

Strokes were conceded Biery on the third, sixth, seventh, tenth, thirteenth and fourteenth holes.

Edward M. Cross was the winner of the medal play, one-half handicap at the Andover Country club Sunday. He turned in a card of 89-9-80, defeating H. C. Rickard by one stroke as the latter had 89-8-81.

Other scores were: George Best, 89-7-82; O. B. Benson, 93-10-83; Charles Rickard, 94-11-83; J. A. Arnold, 93-10-83; F. H. Galloway, 97-13-84; W. E. Atwood, 105-14-91; George Weaver, 108-14-94.

A medal play full handicap tournament Saturday was won by J. P. Bardwell with a card of 93-26-67. E. M. Cross was second with 87-19-68. Other scores included Dr. J. A. Levek, 79-8-71; H. S. Walters, 98-26-72; F. D. Manning, 98-26-72; W. H. Midgely, 100-28-72; J. A. Arnold, 93-20-75; W. B. Knowlton, 95-20-75; H. F. Montgomery, 104-28-76; W. M. Lamont, 92-14-78; H. I. Emmons, 106-28-78.

Autos in Collision

An Essex coach, operated by Frank B. Pierce, of 358 Main street, Haverhill, was badly damaged in a crash at North Main and William street, Sunday morning, but occupants of both cars escaped injury.

Arthur Simard, of 60 Oxford street, operator of a Buick touring was the other motorist involved in the crash. Pierce was turning into William street out of North Main when the crash happened and both cars struck near the front ends. The touring car was slightly damaged.

Civil Service Examinations Announced

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

Land purchaser, $3,800 to $4,400 a year, National Park Service at Large, San Francisco, Calif., and elsewhere. Applicants must show that they have been graduated from a college or university of recognized standing with a degree in forestry; and, in addition, must have had at least five years of responsible experience in classifying, appraising, and conducting negotiations for the purchase of lands; provided, that graduate work in forestry may be substituted year for year for the required experience up to a total of two years.

Associate architect, $3,200 a year; assistant architect, $2,600 a year, office of the Supervising Architect, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

Policeman, $1,900 a year, Metropolitan Police Department and Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital, Washington, D. C.

Assistant Psychologist, $2,600 to $3,100 a year, Public Health Service, for duty at the United States penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kansas.

Physiologist (fruit and nut investigations), $3,800 to $4,400 a year; associate physiologist (fruit and nut investigations), $3,200 to $3,700 a year; associate agronomist (dry land agriculture), $3,200 to $3,700 a year; assistant agronomist (forage crops), $2,600 to $3,100 a year, Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, for duty in Washington, D. C., or in the field.

Biologist, $3,800 to $4,400 a year, United States Public Health Service, for duty at Boston, Mass.

All states except Maryland, Virginia, Vermont and the District of Columbia have received less than their share of appointments in the apportioned Departmental Service at Washington, D. C.

Insects Have Own Way to Communicate

Certain insects, it seems, have as good, if not a better, way of communicating than human beings. People make sounds that have produced a language, while bees and ants do their communicating by means of their sense of smell. Theirs is a refined method. They have a smell language. If people were able to develop their noses to the extent that these insects have developed theirs, they could listen in on the conversation of insects!

Dr. N. E. McIndoo, senior entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture, determined to discover, if possible, just what means of communication was used by bees. He wondered how bees, for example, know one another; how do they communicate information when once they have gained it? How do they know friend from foe? Some have supposed that sight was responsible. Yet it is not reasonable to suppose that each insect in a large community of thousands of insects could recognize by sight every other individual in it; thus it was presumed that there must be signs or passwords.

Dr. McIndoo has proved that the signs and passwords are largely a development of the smell language. In fact, experiments, tests and studies, showed that many insects have an amazing ability to distinguish odors. They are able not only to quickly recognize a single odor, but a combination of odors. Theirs is a complicated knowledge. While one odor might stand for one word, they distinguish a number of smells equal to several sentences or even paragraphs, thus receiving a whole group of ideas. Man has never approached this standard of efficiency by way of his nose.

In attempting to discover this strange language of bees, it was found that there are at least six different odors that are fundamental and might be compared to an alphabet of the hive.

There is the individual odor. Every bee has its own odor. The queen bee has her own specific odor and the workers have theirs. All offsprings of one mother queen have a common inherited odor, in addition to the individual odors. Then there is the brood and chyle odor, and the drone odor, and the wax odor, the honey odor and the hive odor.

Dr. McIndoo developed his own sense of bee odor so as to be able to distinguish the hive odor, brood odor, the pollen, or beebread odor, and the wax odor, and, incidentally, the specific odor that came from a bee sting. After a few months' experience he added to his knowledge of bee language a recognition of the three castes of bees—queens, drones and workers—merely by smelling them.

The worker bees just coming out of the cells always had a faint, sweetish odor. The old queens seemed to have a strong, sweetish odor. This queen odor, the scientist said, was "very pleasant and is as characteristic of queens as the bee odor is of workers." The old drones have their own smell and it is not as pleasant.

Carefully developing his own ability to distinguish odors, Dr. McIndoo found that the queen odor seemed to be the predominant one that made for happy bee life. The hive without a queen is not a smooth-running colony. The bees without the pleasant voice of their queen, as expressed in her pervading odor, are irritable and do not work normally. They are unhappy, and might be called melancholy

The bees carry their own odor about with them as well as the specific odor of their hive. This is found on their bodies among the hairs. This odor serves as a sign, or mark, by which all the occupants of a hive know one another. Since the queens and drones are the aristocrats of the colony, they seem to disregard the sign that has been thrust upon them, but still, whenever a queen enters the wrong hive, she is soon made to realize that she wears the wrong badge.

Worker bees, returning to the hives from the field, pass the guards unmolested because they have the proper smell. This shows the ability of the bees to understand many odors, for these workers may be carrying honey or nectar which has its own odor, but still underneath somewhere is the individual odor of the bee and the hive odor, and it is recognized and gives speedy entry.

A bee, however, is in danger of losing its own password or mark. Dr. McIndoo found that if a bee was kept away from its hive for three days, it lost the odor of the colony from lack of association. Attempting to return, this poor bee was challenged at the entrance. Possibly it was killed or driven away.

A foreign odor of another colony of bees brings all the bees into action. They will fight for their own odor, and the smell of a strange hive is just as much a declaration of war as though someone shouted or printed it in a newspaper. It is this hive odor that acts like a national flag. It is the ruling spirit of the hive. It is the oath of loyalty. It keeps them together and sends them out to bring in food and return it to the hive where it belongs.

But the wonderful sense of smell is not the only way that bees talk.

Bees do other things. For example, when they are happy they dance. Dr. McIndoo watched their round dance and their tail-wagging dance, each the apparent result of pleasure.

Von Frisch, a professor of zoology in Germany, says that dancing among bees is almost as common as dancing among people. They express their emotions of joy or happiness. As far as is known, the bees do not dance to music, but their dance is one of high pleasure.

Dr. McIndoo watched this strange dancing and noticed that when a bee returns from scouting about for food and is passed at the entrance, the worker having found food, rushes in and begins to dance in happiness. Right in the midst of a number of bees the little explorer begins her round dance. Her honey stomach is filled with the sweet and fragrant nectar, she is happy and so quite naturally expresses it in her dance.

This round dance is a lively little rite. It is a kind of waltz. First, the scout bee salutes her friends of the hive with her extended, palpitating antennae, while gently crossing and recrossing those of the other bees. While she is doing that kind of handshaking, she is also sharing her nectar with several of the attending bees. By the time she reaches the thickest group she begins dancing around on the comb in narrow semi-circles, first in one direction, then in the other, keeping up the dance for quarter or half a minute. While passing through these semi-circles the dancing bee comes in direct contact with the attending bees; these are greatly excited and a few of them follow behind the dancer with their antennae touching her abdomen.

This pleasant little experience not only makes the bees happy but tells them that outside there is food, so they rush out. "The attending bees seem to acquire without difficulty the necessary information about the nectar to be sought," says Dr. McIndoo. "We cannot even guess that the dancer tells the attending bees while stroking their antennae; neither can we imagine what kind of an impression is produced in the little 'minds' of the attending bees by the fragrant odor of the flower, carried on the body. All we know is that bees become excited by attending the round dance, quickly rush out of the hive, and search in all directions for the plants furnishing this particular nectar. This action may help to explain why bees have the habit of collecting nectar or pollen from only one kind of plant on any one trip."

The scientists found that the dance not only told the flower to be sought, but it also acted as a means of sending many bees out to obtain the nectar, for they, too, returned to dance, then others went out. Without the fragrant nectar there was no dancing.

Bees are like people. Their behavior, Dr. McIndoo says, reminds him of people performing a piece of work. "As long as there is an abundance of enthusiasm and work to be done, everything goes well; but as soon as enthusiasm lags and the end of the work is in sight, the organization weakens and becomes filled with quitters."

Apparently in bee language the round dance comes with the finding of fragrant nectar. But there is the tail-wagging dance when the pleasant smelling pollen is discovered. This might be called a jazz dance, for it is jerky and filled with odd body movements.

A pollen-laden bee coming back to the hive crawls upward on the comb, and when in the midst of other bees begins to attract the attention of her associates by performing this peculiar dance. She describes a semi-circle first to the right or left on the comb, then runs forward in a straight line over two or three cells to the starting point, from which she describes another semi-circle in the opposite direction, thus completing an entire circuit. Going back to the starting point she goes again through the dance. As she runs forward she wags her tail from four to twelve times. These waggings are very quick, rhythmical, sidewise movements of the entire body, but the swaying is greatest at the tip of the abdomen and least as the head.

As the dance is begun other bees crowd up and fall in line behind the dancer, go through the little performance, and then rush out to obtain some of the pollem themselves. Some way, while making this dance, they learn all about where to go to get the pollen and what kind. This is probably communicated by the smell.

There is a whole language of odors used by bees. For example, Dr. McIndoo noted that sometimes the bees kept their scent organs from being exposed while visiting flowers. And again they would leave this smell-mark on the flower, so that after their dance other bees would not only find that they had been there, but would note that this flower and its nectar or pollen belonged to that particular hive, since the bee's individual odor and that of the hive were both found. Experiments showed that bees did not poach on flowers first visited by other bees.

Dr. McIndoo's studies proved that not only bees but ants talk to each other through odors. Some ants have a smoky odor, others a pungent and ether odor, and still others smell like lemon, geranium or oil of citronella and so on.

The production of individual odors by insects and animals comes from tiny scent glands that lubricate the skin and hair. Dogs have the ability to distinguish many things by the odor. But even a dog's nose is not as accurate as many insects. During the World War a lively interest was taken in the breeding of dogs for the rendering of aid to the wounded. At that time an interesting experiment was made on a level, sandy place in Amsterdam where a boy followed a rectangular route, ending at a laboratory. The boy walked in the sand, and after the trip the dog was started on the scent. Although there were many obstacles and a strong wind was blowing, street cars and people along the way, the dog made the right turns and finally reached the laboratory.

Police dogs succeeded in distinguishing single pebbles held by certain individuals among hundreds, even when thrown ten or twenty yards, and what is more, the right pebble would be taken back to the right person.

Another time four pocketbooks belonging to four men were laid in a row. A police dog known as Albert could not distinguish by sight the owner of each purse, but he made no mistake in doing so by smell. He was allowed to smell one by one, the men and then smelled all the pocketbooks, announcing his decision by barking. Dogs, too, were able to detect the mere touching by others of a piece of wood, even though the touch was extremely light.

It appears that one day we shall know better the very language of animals and insects, but in order to listen in it is probable that unless some invention is produced we will have to sharpen our sense of smell so as to know how it is that these tiny creatures talk.

Vatican City Has Many Telephones

Vatican City, Rome, with a population of 500 people, will have a telephone system comprising 800 telephones. Considered as a separate state, this is probably the highest telephone development of any place in the world. San Francisco, which holds the palm among American cities, has approximately 31 telephones per 100 inhabitants.

Actually, this system compares more nearly to that of an industrial plant, hotel or commercial establishment in the United States, where the number of telephones compared with the number of people employed runs much higher than in the case of the number of telephones per inhabitant of a large city.

Pope Pius' personal telephone will be of solid gold, bearing the Pontifical seal and ornamented with mother-of-pearl. He will be able to telephone his messages without the call passing through the exchange board. The Papal Secretary of State and some of the other dignitaries will also have private lines in addition to the main system.

Crockery Wreckage Huge

More than 200,000 glasses were smashed in the last year on the restaurant cars of a German company which has about 600 cars in the international European traffic. The glasses smashed represent five times the normal number carried. One hundred thousand pieces of crockery are in use, but more than twice that number are broken annually. Only 27,000 beer glasses are in use, but 114,000 are broken each year.

Nickel Steel Rail Joints

For increasing the comfort of the traveler and lengthening the life of the rails, the dips or hollows at the points where the rails connect are fused by electric arc welding. This melts the rail to a depth of one-eighth of an inch and fuses thereon a deposit of 5 per cent nickel steel, which is nearly 50 per cent harder than the rail itself.

Entertainment in Ant Hills

Scientists believe that, in addition to maintaining guests of usefulness in their homes, ants are fond of keeping pets, for tiny crickets often find shelter and abundant food in the home of an ant. Beetles, too, with a peculiar fragrance that makes them welcome are often fed and sheltered in the hospitable home of the ant.

QUAKES DUE TO SHAKE MIDWEST

Scientists Declare That the Floods Are Unbalancing Earth's Crust.

Washington.—An earthquake of perhaps calamitous proportions may be expected at any time in the Mississippi valley, according to documents and testimony of leading scientists just made available through publication in the Congressional Record.

Constant erosion of the soil by annual floods is unbalancing the earth's crust and violent upheavals extending all the way from the mouth of the Missouri to the delta jutting out into the Gulf of Mexico are due, the scientists say.

Among the prominent authorities quoted are Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the United States geological survey; Myron L. Fuller, an associate of Doctor Smith, F. W. Sohon, S. J., of the Georgetown university seismological observatory; J. A. Joliat, associate professor of the department of geophysics of St. Louis university, and Prof. William H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan.

Much Earth Shifting.

Their views were placed in the Record by Representatives Garber and Stone of Oklahoma, in support of the reservoir system of Mississippi river flood control against the present levee system. Mr. Stone explained that the volume of earth now being carried down the Mississippi river and deposited in the Gulf of Mexico amounts to about 400,000,000 cubic yards each year, or a quantity equal to the total excavation for the Panama canal.

"You may consider this alarming," said Mr. Stone, "but if you study the question you will find the Mississippi valley is constantly threatened with a real danger, one that demands serious consideration. An earthquake is not only possible but very probable and may occur at any time."

It is a historical fact that the most severe earthquake ever recorded in the United States occurred in 1811 with its center near the mouth of the Ohio river. Scientists speak of it as the New Madrid earthquake. It was even more severe than the destructive shock at Charleston, S. C., in 1886. That the loss in life was small was due only to the fact that the country at that time was very sparsely settled.

"Today millions reside in this district and would be directly affected should a similar disturbance visit the Mississippi valley," says the geological survey. "The loss of life and property damage would be appalling."

There is an abundance of evidence, geological and otherwise, that similar earthquakes have been occurring in the New Madrid area about every hundred years. In fact, says the survey, "we have also subsequent to the shock of 1811 records of a long line of minor disturbances continuing to the present time, showing that the crust is even now in unstable equilibrium."

Visions Sea Menace.

Geological survey officials say that a quake of the intensity of the 1811 shock would be disastrous to a number of small cities in the New Madrid section; that the cities of Cario and Memphis also would suffer probably severely; that St. Louis probably would be badly shaken.

Doctor Smith thinks it probable that an earthquake may take place farther down the river "in the vicinity of the Gulf coast." Congressman Stone interprets this to mean "the mouth of the Mississippi."

"Should the lower delta country be visited by an earthquake," says Stone, "the result might be compared to the great Lisbon disaster, which threw down the principal part of the city. The sea retired and instantly returned in a wave 40 feet high, engulfing the great marble quay. In the space of six minutes 50,000 persons perished."

Doctor Joliat announced that the University of St. Louis has undertaken an intensive study of the earthquakes in the New Madrid region. Three sets of specially designed seismographers are being set up to record earth tremors at close range. St. Xavier college, to the northeast of Cincinnati, is also operating a pair of sensitive seismographs.

Raze Hotel Famous in Alaskan Gold Stampede

Seattle, Wash.—Demolition of the West's most noted hotel has been started to make way for the new $5,000,000 federal building here. Constructed immediately after the fire of 1889, the Rainier-Grand has been the temporary home of many, including Presidents.

Among the furnishings to be saved are the mahogany bar, stained glass trimmings and scales on which was weighed much of the Klondike gold in the days of '98. Every prospector who came back with a poke of gold began to unload the yellow metal at the Rainier-Grand.

Arkansas May Lose One of Representatives

Little Rock, Ark.—Arkansas probably will lose one of its congressional districts under the reapportionment that will take place when the national census is completed. The growth of the state's population in the last decade was less than 6 per cent and a shifting population probably will reduce the congressional representatives from seven to six.

To Get Rid of Ants

House-inhabiting ants, such as the little red or Pharoah's ant, and other species that get into furniture, woodwork, etc., are difficult to eradicate because of their inaccessibility. If the nest can be located, destroy the inmates by injecting into the opening a little carbon disulphide, kerozene, or gasoline. Use an oil can or syringe. Take care, of course, to keep fire away from these inflammable materials. Dusting sodium fluoride about the runways of ants will kill them. Leave no food where ants can get at it.

Washington Current Comment

In 1927 two men were drowned within the shadow of a prison wall because a guard refused to permit convicts to go to their rescue. When a like fatality was threatened at the same place last week, four prisoners were freed to form an emergency life-saving corps, and returned to the institution after accomplishing what they set out to do. The fact that they were successful, and proved themselves trustworthy may be left out of consideration. If they had run away and left the persons in the sinking skiff to perish, the general effect produced would have been better than that resulting from the incident of three years ago.

Under pressure of recent events, Chicago gangsters have had a love-feast, selected a new boss, terminated their quarrels, and put the profession in a position to make some real money. It looks as though an official in a large midland city was right when he said that so far as he was concerned, gang wars could go on in his bailiwick, provided that innocent by-standers were not injured.

Austrian monarchists assembled in Vienna swear to seat Archduke Ootto on the throne, and that right-speedily. Considering that "there are many absent faces here today" in the ranks of aforetime kings, and that the prerogatives of those who remain have been considerably curtailed of late, Otto's partisans should be reminded that swearing is a bad habit.

Having been robbed through the ages, the sea is giving up its treasures voluntarily and in quantities that are embarrassing. A Long Island resort is trying to figure out what to do with several hundred tons of clams that have been washed ashore, and a Maryland village is annoyed by the presence of a decomposing whale that the ocean has rolled upon the beach.
